

One Bite Fantasy League

Trade Grade

Sent Sept. 6, 2026 · Accepted, under review — takes effect Thursday

	JLozoya	mattware1199
Sends	Malik Nabers (WR, NYG) TreVeyon Henderson (RB, NE)	Omarion Hampton (RB, LAC)
Receives	Omarion Hampton (RB, LAC)	Malik Nabers (WR, NYG) TreVeyon Henderson (RB, NE)

Grades

JLozoya A-	mattware1199 C+
---------------------------------	--------------------------------------

JLozoya wins this trade. Consolidates two shakier situations into one clean, high-floor RB1 with an unshared workload and no red flags. Omarion Hampton grades as a clear top-20 overall asset across current rankings (ESPN, Yahoo, FTN/Ratcliffe) with nothing complicating his outlook.

mattware1199 sells a sure thing to buy upside. Malik Nabers grades similarly to Hampton on paper (~WR9-12) but is coming off a torn ACL, missed most of the summer, and beat reporters note Isaiah Likely has been building chemistry with Jaxson Dart in his absence — real risk his role isn't full-strength early. TreVeyon Henderson is the bigger problem: as of the day this trade was sent, he was in serious danger of missing Week 1 with an ankle injury, having not practiced since Aug. 24. This is two question marks for one sure thing, and that's a real value downgrade at the moment of the trade — it only ages well if both situations resolve cleanly.

If either player's situation breaks badly before the trade finalizes Thursday, this grade tilts even further toward JLozoya.

Sources: current-week PPR overall/positional rankings from ESPN (Mike Clay, Field Yates), Yahoo Sports, FTN/Jeff Ratcliffe (updated Sept. 4, 2026), and Bleacher Report, cross-referenced against the league's blended 10-board draft value data. Injury notes: Yahoo Sports and SI/Sporting News training-camp injury trackers, current as of Sept. 6, 2026.